DOMINATRIX

A dominatrix is a woman-sometimes also a non-binary or genderqueer person-who takes the dominant role in consensual BDSM activities, often referred to as "femdom" or female dominance[1] [2] [3]. A dominatrix may be a professional (pro-domme) who provides paid BDSM services, focusing on psychological control, power exchange, and specialized practices like bondage, discipline, and erotic humiliation, rather than traditional sexual contact[1] [4]. Sessions are built around consent, negotiation, and safety, and can involve a range of activities from roleplay and behavioral modification to sensation play and corporal punishment[1] [4]. While some dominatrices work professionally, others engage in dominance as part of personal relationships or bedroom roleplay[2] [4].

GENETIC GIRL DOMINATRIX

There is no widely recognized term or concept specifically called "genetic girl dominatrix" in mainstream BDSM or sexuality literature. If you mean a dominatrix who is a cisgender woman (assigned female at birth and identifies as female), the standard term is simply "dominatrix" or "domme," which refers to any woman taking the dominant role in BDSM activities, regardless of her gender history[5] [6] [7].

If you are asking whether being a dominatrix or having dominant sexual interests is genetic, research suggests that genetics might play a role in shaping sexual interests or kinks, but environment and personal experience are also significant factors[8].
